Corn land that was prepared for planting before the recent heavy rains will have to be prepared again, if the best results are obtained. That however will be no misfortune in the end. Some of the best working that corn receive is in thorough preparation.

Guano hauling goes steadily on. Since the rain 100 or more wagons have been loaded daily at Edgefield. The March winds have aided Supervisor Edmunds very materially in keeping the roads in a passable condition.

Office men, Attention: Get a clipless paper fastener for $2.

Bright's Cash Store.

Judging from the way some of the farmers are buying guano distributors they will be much used implements on the farm this year. We do not believe the cotton acreage will be increased in this county, and the quantity of commercial fertilizers used will probably be about the same as last year.

The pantry sale that will be held in the rooms of the library Thursday will greatly reduce the high cost of living. Meats and sweetmeats of all kinds will be placed on the bargain counter. Nothing will be carried over to next season.

Death of Mr. Murrell.

After a lingering illness Mr. B. Murrell died at his home in Edgefield early Monday night. He was reared in the Philippi section and moved to Edgefield to make his home about 15 years ago. For several years he has been engaged in the mercantile business, his store being located near the cotton mill. Mr. Murrell is survived by his wife and one son. A short time ago he was received into the Methodist church. The interment took place in the cemetery at Harmony Tuesday afternoon, the funeral services being conducted by Rev. J. R. Walker.

Entertained Her Class.

Miss Florence Mims entertained her class, the eighth grade, Tuesday afternoon from four to six o'clock at her home in Buncombe. The class is composed of Blondelle Hart, Gus Tompkins, Charlie Porter, Guy Broadwater, Lallie Peak, Elizabeth Smith, Harold Norris, Eldred Simkins, Ida Folk, Percy Ouzts, Helen Dorn, Ruth Lyon, Rhea Edmunds, Alma DeLoach and Eugene Timmons. Lizzie Roper was also among the guests.

The time selected for the entertainment being so near St. Patrick's day, a decidedly Irish coloring was given the occasion. The predominating color among the decorations was green, shamrock, which is so deeply revered by the sons of Erin, being very much in evidence. The parlor was tastefully decorated in green and yellow, shamrock supplying one and jessamine, one of the earliest as well as one of the sweetest flowers of spring, furnishing the other. The dining room was decorated in green and white.

The hostess arranged several contests, the first being the supplying of missing words in a poem. Each of the missing words began with the letters "pat". Next came the "pig" contest, the pig being held in very high esteem in Ireland. Each of the guests was given an Irish potato from which a pig had to be carved, straws being used for the legs. A prize was awarded the one who carved the most beautiful (?) pig.

In the missing word contest the first prize was won by Charlie Porter and Lallie Peak and the consolation prize fell to the lot of Gus Tompkins and Elizabeth Smith. In the second contest Guy Broadwater and Lizzie Roper won the first prize and the consolation prize was awarded Harold Norris and Ida Folk.

At the conclusion of the contests the guests were invited into the dining room, where, seated about a long, tastefully decorated table, they partook of a salad course, which was followed by sweets and confectionery, all of which emphasized the St. Patrick's motive. Fruit punch of emerald hue was also served. The occasion seemed to be thoroughly enjoyed by the what-shall-we-call them. They are neither boys nor girls, men nor women, but happy care-free creatures who while in this transitional stage are in the heyday of their existence.

Court Proceedings.

At the time The Advertiser went to press last week the court was engaged with the suit of Mr. J. R. Owens against the Western Union Telegraph Company for damages in the sum of $1,950 alleged to have resulted from the failure to deliver a telegram. A message was sent from Birmingham, Ala., to Mr. Owens at Johnston concerning the purchase of some property in Spartanburg. The message was received at Johnston but the operator was unable at the time to find Mr. Owens. The jury rendered a verdict in favor of the telegraph company, which was represented by Tompkins & Wells and J. T. Gettis of Columbia. The plaintiff was represented by Simkins & Folk.

The next case called was the suit of S. McG. Simkins against the telegraph company for $500. This was also for damages alleged to have resulted from a delayed telegram which was sent to Mr. Simkins last summer from Parksville. In this case a demurrer was interposed and was sustained by the court. It is probable that Mr. Simkins will appeal to the supreme court from the decision of the lower court.

The suit of Mr. R. T. Strom against the telegraph company for the failure to deliver a telegram was settled by the company paying Mr. Strom $150.

The second week of the civil court began Monday but only one case went to the jury. That was a suit of the Beaver Dam Mills against the Southern Railway company for $237 to cover loss alleged to have resulted from the wasting of cotton seed from a car that was shipped to the mill at Edgefield from Montmorenci. The jury rendered a verdict for the railroad, which was represented by Capt. N. G. Evans. The mill was represented by Sheppard Bros and B. E. Nicholson.

The other cases on the docket were continued and court adjourned Tuesday.

Webster's NEW INTERNATIONAL Dictionary, (G. & C. Merriam Co., Springfield, Mass.) surpasses the old International as much as that book exceeded its predecessor. On the old foundation a new superstructure has been built. The reconstruction has been carried on through many years by a large force of trained workers, under the supervision of Dr. W. T. Harris, former United States Commissioner of Education, and reinforced by many eminent specialists. The definitions have been rearranged and amplified. The number of terms defined has been more than doubled. The etymology, synonyms, pronunciation, have received unsparing scholarly labor. The language of English literature for over seven centuries, the terminology of the arts and sciences, and the every-day speech of street, shop, and household, are presented with fullness and clearness. In size of vocabulary, in richness of general information, and in convenience of consultation, the book sets a new mark in lexicography.

Little George was 6 years old at New Year's, and the family was much interested in having him start to school in February, but he insisted that he was not going, says the Woman's Home Companion. One day his grandmother said to him: "George, you are going to school with sister this winter, aren't you?"

"No, grandma, I'm not going to school at all. I can't read, nor I can't write, nor I can't sing, and I'd like to know what good I'd be at school."
